

COOPERATIVE LEADERSHIP

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES

CEO: The CEO is charged with operating a large, complex business that's unlike other small businesses in our communities. The responsibility of powering essential services in ALL our communities is an expectation of the CEO; local hospitals, schools, factories, communication systems, water treatment facilities and more. Compensation comparisons should be made with similarly-sized businesses that have critical infrastructure responsibilities.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS: Directors spend significant time and energy serving in this complex and rapidly changing industry. They also have a fiduciary duty to the co-op and face potential liability for breaching that duty. They are compensated for their leadership role in guiding the direction of the co-op and accepting the risk and responsibility of being a director in that capacity. Numerous hours are spent meeting with district members, following industry trends, and staying abreast of legislative affairs that will affect the strategic decisions making.

EMPLOYEES: All compensation represents a small fraction of the overall expenses of a cooperative. Employee payroll is no different. Many factors are considered when determining salary - including tenure, experience, education, responsibilities, and the size and location of the co-op.

COOPERATIVE NETWORK: Our business is complex and we are making multi-million dollar decisions that affect a lot of people, decisions that demand industry experience and education. Our power suppliers also require season directors. It's important that we continue to have a seat at the table so we can have a voice in their decision-making.
